have to manage my time to where I have time to work out and then have adequate time to finish my homework and study. Because we usually have practice in the morning, whenever I finish my classes for the day, I start my homework and study for about two to three hours. After that I usually go to the gym to work out or take a study break and hang out with my friends. If I still have work to finish at that point, I will go back and finish everything.
